Gentlemen,

In my humble opinion, it seems Microsoft's competitors are doing everything they can to leverage the Justice Department to do what they could not do in a free market (increase their market share on their on merits). If we the consumers (the market place) did not prefer Microsoft's products over its competitors; and it does have competitors, they would not be the market leader they are today.

With that said, I admonish, that the penalties not penalize Microsoft for its market share, but, only for those areas of liability it should bear for any illegal or proven unfair business practices.

Thank you for all consideration.
